We vesterday received interesting intelligence from several points in the vicinity and on the southern section of the American continent. Our dates

The advices from Mexico, San Juan de Nicaragua, and Valparaiso, are no later than those previously received; but the information embraced in them is of importance to those interested in those countries.

The news from Ecuador fully confirms the statements published in the HERALD of Saturday last. It appears that we were right in supposing that Gen. Flores was at the head of the expedition which lately left Callon for Guayaquil. According to the fresh advices, the expedition is rather a formidable affair, and may succeed in its designs on Ecuador. We should think that the repeated unsuccessful efforts of Flores to overthrow Roca and Urbinia would have induced him not to make another weak attempt.

Our correspondence from Havana is full and ineresting. There had been a serious hail storm in Cuba, which had injured the tobacco crops. The sugar grinding had also been affected by rains. The greatest preparations were making for a series of magnificent fetes in Havana. A full record of the shipping movements, to the latest dates, at all the Cuban ports, will be found under the proper head.

The intelligence from Gonaives states that Sonlongue was to have been crowned Emperor of Hayti, with great pomp, on the 1st instant. Our previous accounts mentioned that the 18th was the day fixed for that important and imposing event. The pages of history may yet remark the singular coincidence of the inauguration as Emperors on the same day, er about the same, of the Presidents of two republies, in the persons of Soulouque, of Hayti, and Louis Napoleon, of France.

The letter of Mr. Wyllie, the Hawaiian Minister of Foreign Affairs, is important just now. Our influence in the Pacific must be maintained. The English, in beginning a second Burmese war, are extending their area in Asia. The United States must not, therefore, permit so important a half-way station between the two continents as are the Sandwich Islands to fall into European hands.

The whig Senators held a caucus in Washington last Saturday, and appointed a committee to consult with a similar body from the whig members of the House, as to the time and place of holding the National Convention of the party. The time will probably be either the middle of June or the first of July. As to the place, a majority of the caucus were understood to be in favor of Annapolis, Md. for the reason, no doubt, that the term "Philadelphia Slaughter-house" has of late become exceedingly unpopular, and is decidedly vulgar, at the best. Well, there is a great deal in starting with a good name; and if the whigs select a sound manone whose principles are known-they may accomplish their object of tenanting the White House during

We have an account of still another horrible steamboat explosion on the western waters. Just as the Glencove, from New Orleans, reached the dock at St. Louis, all her boilers exploded, and the vessel took fire and was consumed in a few minutes. There were about one hundred and fifty passengers on board at the time, a large number of whom were instantly killed by the steam, or else perished in the Sames. Many persons on the adjoining boats, were also killed or wounded.

A very destructive fire occurred at Elizabeth City. N. C., last Friday. Several of the principal buildings in the place were destroyed.

The Collins steamer Baltic, with four days' later advice from Europe, is now in her twelfth day. She will doubtless arrive in time for us to give her new in to-morrow's paper.

Close of the Cuban Trials-No Verdict.

The termination of the trial of O'Sullivan and others, charged with getting up an expedition to invade Cuba, will be found elsewhere in our columns to-day, comprehending the able, learned, and lucid charge delivered to the jury by Judge Judson, of the United States Court, with the result of the trial by the jury being unable to find a verdict. This is a lame and impotent conclusion, after twentythree days of labor and toil, to Judge, counsel, and witnesses, and reporters. The jury could not agree, being nearly equally divided as to the guilt of the parties on trial.

This trial presents to the mind several aspects of great importance to the country, affecting our internal and foreign relations. For several weeks we have seen the United States Court, in this city, engaged, day after day, in hearing the evidence and sifting out the facts; and after all the labor expended, and the law laid down, and the learning exhibited, the jury could find nothing sufficiently strong or positive in the conduct of the persons indicted to warrant either their acquittal or condemnation. Yet it seems evident, after perusing the testimony, as published day by day, that there was an expedition organized for the purpose of making a descent on Cuba, and that in the ordinary run of evidence there was sufficient in amount to convict the prisoners, or some of them at least, of a participation in that enterprise, which was clearly got up contrary to the laws of the United States. With all this testimony before them, the jury had sufficient conscientious scruples to withhold a verdict either for or against the persons arraigned before them. This singular termination of such a trial, on such evidence and under such a charge, growing out of an alleged violation of the laws of the United States. presents a remarkable resemblance to the same state of things, and to a similar result, which took place a few months ago at New Orleans, on the arraignment of a number of individuals there, charged with a like offence. It will be well recollected that General Henderson, of New Orleans, underwent three trials in that city without any result, on a similar charge to that which was brought against O'Sullivan & Co. in this metropolis. The evidence in the case of Henderson was by no means so strong as that in the case of O'Sullivan; yet, in both instances, in the two leading cities of the Union, before intelligent communities, not a jury can be found who will convict American citizens of any offence for getting up expeditions to invade or to liberate the Island of Cuba Perhaps, if General Lopez had been tried in New Orleans, he, having been a foreigner, and acting clearly and unequivocally in violation of our laws, might have been convicted; but in the case of American sympathizers and participants in such an expedition, it seems that no reliance can be placed on any jury, in any part of the country, so far as the government may expect a conviction, even with full and positive evidence of the parties having been engaged in the commission of the offence.

The history of the trial here, and of the several trials in New Orleans, presents, therefore, curious facts growing out of the state of public opinion, which are calculated to command attention and to provoke further inquiry. What is the reason that no jury can be found to convict an American citizen for endeavoring, from sympathy, or any other cause, to get up an expedition to give freedom to Cuba? We suspect there is a more general sympathy in the mind of the American people for a Cuban expedition than any one has dreamed of. But another reason may be given. We have seen recently the extraordinary enthusiaem which burst out in this country on the reception of Kossuth, and the attention which he has received from Congress, and the Executive, and the American people, in the face of all his avowals and preparations to get up an expedition in favor of Hungary, and against Austria, and to procure material aid for intervention in European affairs. The common sense of a juryman, therefore, can see no difference between sympathy for Hungary, or Faropean republicanism, and sympathy for Gaba and Creole independence. They have seen all the public authorities, and all the religious, all the respectable classes of this country, hailing with enthusiasm the representative of Hungarian independence; and they very naturally conclude that the support of the representatives and assistants of Cuban independence is a part only of the same general movement and the same general feelings, and that all statutes and laws to the contrary are antiquated, absurd, and irreconcilable with common sense and common decency. It is, therefore, to this state of things in connection with Kossuth, and the reception which he has received by the highest authorities in this country, that we may look for the cause that prevent juries from finding Cuban sympathizers and Cuban revolutionists guilty of any offence against obsolcte laws or antiquated statutes.

One very important result will probably follow from the singular termination of this trial in New York, in combination with the New Orleans trials. From this time forward, we may expect to see expeditions started in this country, either in the South or Southwest, openly and above board, regardless of the laws and the Executive; and expeditions, too, of immense magnitude and force, sufficient to create trouble and terror both in Cuba and in Spain. No American jury can be found, it seems, that will convict an American sympathizer of getting up such an expedition in the most public way against the present government that exists in Cuba. It has been tried, and the fact is realized in the two principal cities of the United States-New York and New Orleans. Hereafter, our own government, and the government of Spain, may look out for squalls and expeditions without number; nor do we see any repressive remedy in prospect. We fear, therefore, that filtbusterism will rise to par before next November. What then is to be done? What is the use of laws or treaties ? How is Spain or the United States to IMPERTINENCE.-We have received a note signed by M. G. Tuck-as nearly as we can understand itfor Myer & Sucken, desiring us to give an editorial notice or puff of one of their vessels, that had made two short voyages between Bremen and New York, and inclosing five dollars. We deem this a very silly piece of impertinence. Other journals may put in puffs editorial, for pay. We never do such a thing. The gentlemen will please send to this office and receive their five dollars again.

NOTICE, NOT FROM THE POST OFFICE .- We have received, addressed to our care, a sealed letter, with the superscription of "To the Thirty Ladies of New York who presented the O'Conor Testimonial." It is post-paid, with the post-mark of "Jamesville." If any of the thirty ladies, or all of them, will please to send to this office, they can have the letter.

The April Term of the Law Courts.

This being the first Monday in the month, the April term of the Law Courts commences; and though the calendars are still heavy, we cannot find many cases of special importance. The few past terms have disposed of some of the most important and exciting trials that have been on our law calendars for years:—the Forrest divorce case—the Willis assault case, and the alleged Cuban expe dition-and those that remain are comparatively uninteresting. We heard it rumored that the jury having disagreed in the Cuban case, the accused parties will be brought to true in the Universitates Circuit Court. In the Superior Court, there are on the trial calendar six hundred and seventy-two causes, amongst the first of which is that of Jones against Wilkes, for libel; there are sixty five cases on the general term, and eighty on the special term. The Common Pleas, and the Supreme Court, special term and circuit, have also a vast number of causes till on their calendars; and in the United States Circuit Court, which opens to-morrow, there will be the usual amount of patent cases for disposal.

City Intelligence.

Fundal of one of the Vertigans of 1812.—Vesterday afternoon the remains of Captain Hugh O'Hare, a soldier in the war of 1812-13-14, who died last Thursday at the advanced age of eighty years, were interred with military honers at St. Patrick's Cathedral Cemetery, in Prince street. The funcial was attended by the Veteran Corps of 1812, the officers and members of the Sixth Regiment, the Governor's Guard, under the command of Coi, Peers, and a detachment of the Ninth Regiment. A detachment of the Governor's Guard, in which corps the deceased served during the war with Engisend, setted as a guard of hence. The procession moved from Madison street to East Broadway, down East Broadway to the Bowery, from the Bowery to Broadway, and thence down Prince to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where the body was interred, and where a detachment of the guard of honor fired three radicies over the grave of the veteran soldier.

Eddy, an actor of great popularity, as the patriot, William Tell. The part of Em na. Tell's wife, by Mrs. Jordan. Miss Hiffert will sing a favorite ballad, which will be followed by the nautical dra na of "Paul Jones." Mr. Stevens in the leading character; nd the amusements will close with the comedy of the a Guardina Angal."

BROADWAY THEATER.—This evening will be the forty-seventh night of Mr. Forrest's performance at the Metro-politan theatre, and still the houses are well filled. He appears for the first time in many years, as Bertram in the tragic play of that name. Barry will sustain the character of the Prior of St. Anselm; Fenno, as St. Alde-brand; M adame Ponisi as Imogine, and Miss Crocker as Clotlide. Several overtures will be played by the orches-tra, and the entertainments will conclude with the "Two Bennycarties"

Bennycastles."

Nimo's Genew.—Auber's popular opera of the "Crown Diamonds," which was received with the greatest success and enthusiastic applause, when last played, will be repeated this evening. Madame Anna Thillon, who is a great favorite, and an excellent actrees, will sustain the character of Catarina, Mr. Hudson that of Don Henrique, and Miss Julia Dally as Diana. The entertainments will terminate with the comedicta entitled the "Irish Secretary."

Shakepeare's fine old comedy of the "Twelfth Night," is the particular feature of attraction. There could not be a better cast of characters. Mosers Placide, Burton, Dyott Blake, Lester, Bland, Johnston, Mrs. Dyott, Miss Weston and Mary Taylor sustain the principal characters. A very amusing musical farce, called the "Maid of the Mountain," will conclude the amusements.

National Theatrie.—This old and popular place of amusement is doing a fine business. Purdy is as active as ever, in catering for the amusement of his patrons. He presents a very attractive programme for this evening. The celebrated drams of the "Carpenter of Rouen" will be the first in erder—Mr. W. G. Jones, sustaining the character of Marteau, and that of Madelon by Mrs. H. F. Nichols. The next will be the drams of the "Miller's Maid," and the whole will conclude with the farce of "Crossing the Line." This bill will be sure to draw a full house.

Rabsum's Muserus —Mr. C. W. Clarke takes his benefit.

House,

Barsum's Museum.—Mr. C. W. Clarke takes his benefit this afternoon and evening. It is scarcely necessary to remind his friends of the fact, as they always give him a humper. The pieces selected are the spectacle called "Cherry and Fair Star." the drama of "The Wife," and the farce of the "Double Bedded Room."

Bowers Cheus.—Sands & Co.'s excellent equestrian company will remain for this week. We therefore advise at those who delight in the exercises of the ring, to visit the Amphitheatre before they leave. The receipts of this evening are for the benefit of Mr Smith.

A CARD.

I deem it a duty I owe to myself, as well as the public, to reply to the statement under the signature of Mesers. Culver and Jay, in the Post of Saturday evening. It was on Thursday and not on Friday that the attorney for the claimant declared his case closed, and I then asked Mesers. Culver and Jay if they were prepared to proceed with their testimony. Mr. Culver having stated, in the morning, that he had three witnesses in attendance, and I then offered to sit until ten that evening. The counsel remarked that we had been in session over six hours, and they would prefer going on with their testimony the following morning. Mr. Jay inquired of the counsel for the claimant if he had any more testimony to offer, and asked the Commissioner if he would permit the claimant to introduce further testimony, and was answered that none but rebutting testimony would be admitted. The case was then adjourned until Friday morning, when the council for the fugitive were to produce their testimony.

the council for the fugitive were to produce their testimony.

At the opening of the Court on Friday, the counsel, Mesers, Jay and Emmet. (Mr. Culver not being present.)
had no winesses in attendance, and subpernas were issued to the marshal to summon two witnesses—Martin and another person. The counsel for the fugitive had called Mr. Busteed to the stand, and had examined him at considerable length, when, the marshal not being able to summon the witnesses, Mr. Jay argued the case on the part of the fugitive, and Mr. Busteed on the part of the claimant, and Mr. Busteed on the part of the claimant, and Mr. Jay, after going to the library to obtain the books cited by the opposite counsel, closed his argument in reply; and the Commissioner reserved his decision until the fellowing morning.

Commissioner reserved his decision until the following morning.

All the papers that I have seen, in which the proceedings were reported, stated the testimony was closed, and that certainly was the understanding of the counsel for the claimant as well as myself.

That it was a mere pretext for vexatious delay, and that they had no testimony to offer, I infer from the fact that after the decision was announced, Mr. Emmet, the associate counsel of Mr. Jay, stated in my office, in the presence of another gentleman, "that it would have been better to have made the offer, to permit them to have gone on, as they had no witnesses to produce, and it would not have occupied over half an hour, and would have been more satisfactory to all concerned."

It is worthy of remark, that the most important statements in the card relate to occurrences which took place when Mr. Culver was not present, and as to the correctness of which he undertakes to vouch in terms as positive as if he were speaking from personal knowledge.

The decision of the Commissioner was based only on the testimony of William D. Reese, and the affidavit of the Attorney, and all confessions of the fugitive were wholly excluded and disregarded, as by a reference to the decision will be apparent.

Genin's Ludies' and Juvenile Barnar, St. Nicholas Hotel, No. 513 Broadway, to be opened Tuesday, April 6.—Fashion and convenience have long required. In this netropolis of the Western world, an establishment from whose ample and comprehensive stores children of all agas could be furnished with a complete outfit, comprising every article of juvenile dress, of the most elegant pattern and make, and the finest material, at prices as moderate acto command a vasi patronace, instead of being regulated by a scale based upon the limited demands of an exclusive circle. Such an establishment Genin has been frequently urged to epen; and at length, satisfied that the wants of the public justify the enterprise, and will sustain it, he has taken a spacious and beautiful store in the new St. Nicholas Hotel, No. 513 Broadway, between Broame and Spring atrect, fitted it up in the mest certly and graceful style of modera desoration, and will open it with a display of juvenile costume and Sancy goods hitherto unsqualled in this country, on Monday, the 5th instant. To this grand sumptuary harar a lady may take her sons, and elothe them from head to foet, after the thun reigning fashion of Paris or London, for a less sum, in the agarcgate, then would be required to purchase the various articles in a dozen different stores, and of interior style, workmanship, and material. Parents jurtly complain of the loss of time and annoyance assessed in buying hats and caps for their children at one place, Sacks, increase price to an apacitother as well as microsas, price as a third, and under-clothing, &c., at the fourth. This difficulty will now be obviated. Geniu's Baraar will be a microscom, a complete mirror of the world of juvenile fashion. Expedition in the execution of orders will be one of the rules of the establishment, and the full and entire satisfaction of every purchaser, at any cost of labor, will be a grand desireration with the proprietor. The first artists in the several departments of juvenile consuments were entered into wit Genin's Ladies' and Juvenile Bazaar, St. eress comprised in the assortments of hundreds of French magazines, and of the various West End temperiums of the British metropolis. Such a concentration of most of the British metropolis. Such a concentration of the dains fashionable apparel, has never been before exhibited under fashionable apparel, has never been before exhibited under energy in the New World. While the store at 218 Broadway will continue to be the head quarters of supply for gentlemen, the Genin Bazaar, 513 Broadway, will be more especially deveted to ladies and children. There will be kept, in acdition to every description of youthful attire, a splendid stock of ladies straw bonnets, untrimmed, of the most elegant designs, riding bats, of the models already introduced by Geniu, and others, now in preparation: Paristriding whips, gloves, gauntlets, and an immense variety of other fancy articles for personal ernament and decoration. Our resident population is rapidly removing up town, leaving ahe southern partion of the city to the bustle of commercial life. Our merchanets and tradesmen, ongaged in buying and selling the great staples of trade, and what are called "articles of the first necessity," spend their days in the great mart of business below Chambers street, but their homes are in the quieter streets and avacues of a less husy region. Midway between the two extremes—the world of fashion, and the world of business—Genia has taken his stand, and thither he invites his friends, customers, and the public, from both ends of the route and all the space between. There is not a more convenient location, for all puries, on the Island of Manhattan. It is precisely the proper of the design of the content of the space of the cestible to the denier and entire of an expected invitation to viried on the men.—between the sample and expected from the content of the samples, Genia tenders a respectful invitation to viried of families. MONEY MARKET.

SATURDAY, April 4-6 P. M. At the close of the stock market yesterday there was good feeling among speculators for a rise, and the pros ect was decidedly in favor of a further improvement in all the leading fancies. The easy state of the money market, the low rates of interest ruling in the street on call oans, the rapidly accumulating specie bases of the banks, the moderate amount of business transacted throughout the city thus far this season, and the limited demand for capital, except for speculative purposes, give operators in fancy stocks facilities very seldom enjoyed. Holders of stocks generally can easily negotiate loans on the hypothecation of the most depreciated security, at a moderate margin, and it is, therefore, not difficult to carry large lots of even the most worthless stocks. So long a loans can be thus easily raised, and such a small margin required for depreciation, we cannot look for any sudden collapse in the market. So long as holders are not compelled to realize, so long will prices be sustained, and so long may speculation continue. There is, however, a point above which it may be most dangerous to go-a point that may induce many heavy holders to secretly realize---the effect of which would be most disastrous to those who were left in the market with large supplies, purchased at high prices. It is very easy to inflate fancy etoeks, and it is equally easy to buy any quantity in Wall street. There are always plenty of sellers. Beyers are not usually so plenty; and it is only in such times as these that the fancies find resting places in such large lots. The great difficulty in fancy stock speculations, is to realize. The advance in prices is no evidence of profit. Because quotations advance a half per cent to-day, and two per cent to-morrow, it does not follow that the buyers realize that profit. The sellers at the time do; but those who, by purchasing, continue the inflation, form the only prop the market has, and the moment that is withdrawn, it falls headlong to the ground. For several weeks past the principal holders of fancy stocks have been the heaviest purchasers. They have not only been com-pelled to keep all they have from time to time bought, but je continue se purchasers in the market, so as to prevent any depreciation in current prices, by stocks pressing or sale. Holders are, therefore, compelled to take every lot offered, which soon becomes a great burden. Certain houses in Wall street are at this moment loaded down with fancy stocks, and they have not the most remote idea how they are to dispose of them. Hopes have been entertained, until very recently, that an outside domand would spring up, and that the fancies, which are now held in such large lots, would be better distributed, and that those who had started the speculation would be able to throw the load they have carried so long upon other shoulders, where the losses which ultimately must be realized would also fall. In this there has been great disappointment; and when the depreciation commences, it will find the fancies in first hands. The profits which have been figured up so largely on paper, will gradually slip away, and holders find nothing left but the little bits of beautifully engraved paper, representing so many shares of stock in some railroad or mining company, with a merely nominal value, which depends entirely upon the imagination of the holder. We have never known a speculative movement in Wall street so limited in its operation as the present It does not extend beyond a dozen or two individuals. who having command of extensive capital, commenced the inflation with the hope of drawing in outsiders at high prices. In this they have failed, utterly failed; and it has already become a most important question with them how they are to reduce their supplies of stock with the smallest possible loss.

At the second board yesterday, Reading Railroad was the weakest fancy on the list. It fell off % per cent from prices current in the morning. The efforts which have recently been made in the Legislature of Pennsylvania to protect the creditors of the Reading Railroad Company, cannot but have the desired effect. It is time something was done to prevent railroad companies from paying dividends, while a floating debt was rapidly accumulating. The Legislature of Pennsylvania disgraced itself by the passage of the act in 1850, permitting the Reading Railroad Company to postpone the payment of its bonds, which had then matured, to 1870; and we doubt if there is another legislative body in the country that would have been guilty of such an outrage. We shall see if as much corruption still exists in that body. A bill has been introduced into the Legislature of Pennsylvania, prohibiting the Reading Railroad Company from paying any dividend on its stock. until its floating debt has been liquidated. We shall closely watch the course of this bill, and carefully note its progress, and the result. Eric Railroad stock has been steadily moving upward, for some days past. The bulls and bears have had quite a contest, and the bears have got the worst of it so far. The reputed earnings of this company do not exhibit a very favorable result. The income for seventy-eight working days, this year, amounts to $624,481-averaging $8,000 per day. At this rate throughout the year, the aggregate income would only amount to $2,512,000. To make up the company's estimate for the year, the average earnings from April 1st to to Dec. 31st, 1852, must be $14,303 for working days. We leave it for those interested to figure up the probability of such a result If the bears will work cautiously. steadily, and patiently, they will have no cause to com-The most prominent stock in the street at this moment, for a new one, is the Nicaragua Transit Company. For some time past this stock has been on the market and occasionally a few shares were sold; but prices gra dually ran down until points as low as 19 and 20 per cent were realized. Within the past two weeks there has been a complete revolution in the market, and an advance of more than one hundred per cent has been the result The cause of this is the rapid increase in business on the company's line. Steamers on each side-the Atlantic and -go and come crowded with passengers, and all the transit facilities across the Isthmus of Nicaragua have been most actively employed. This, with the prospects of the company, has created a demand for the stock, and it is expected that much higher prices will be reached. On the 15th of May next a dividend of between three and four per cent will be declared, after which, regular semi-annual dividends of from five to ten per cent will, without doubt, be earned. The Nicaragua route to California has been rapidly growing in public favor. In a few weeks, several new steamships will be put on the Atlantic and on the Pacific, when a tri-monthly line will be formed from this port, and a semi-mouthly line from New Orleans. It is estimated that, when these arrangements are perfected, as least three thousand passengers will be transported across the Isthmus of Nicaragua per month. This, at an average charge per head of $40, including baggage, will give a gross income of $120,000 per month, or an annual income of $1,440,000, of which full one-half will be net profit, giving a dividend of twenty per cent. at least, per unum on the capital stock. This is independent of the neome derived from the transportation of freight, which s likely to be very large. The rainy season commences in Nicaragua in April, and soon the heaviest boats of the Transit Company will be able to navigate the San Juan
